About the Houston Symphony

During the 2019–20 season, the Houston Symphony celebrates its sixth season with Music Director Andrés Orozco-Estrada and continues its second century as one of America’s leading orchestras with a full complement of concert, community, education, touring, and recording activities. The Houston Symphony, one of the oldest performing arts organizations in Texas, held its inaugural performance at The Majestic Theater in downtown Houston June 21, 1913. Today, with an annual operating budget of $35.2 million, the full-time ensemble of 88 professional musicians presents nearly 170 concerts annually, making it the largest performing arts organization in Houston. Additionally, musicians of the orchestra and the Symphony’s four Community-Embedded Musicians offer over 1,000 community-based performances each year at various schools, community centers, hospitals, and churches reaching nearly 200,000 people in Greater Houston annually.

The Houston Symphony is a 501(c)(3) non-profit that relies on support from the community for two-thirds of its operating budget.

People: The Houston Symphony is a full-time, 52-week-per-year orchestra consisting of and supported by:

- Musicians = 88 full-time and 4 community-embedded musicians
- Conductors = 3
- Volunteers (including 115 Board members) = 671
- Staff = 80 (67 full-time, 13 part-time)

Touring: Regional tours were common for the Symphony in the 1940s, especially wartime visits to military bases in Texas and Louisiana. In 1950, the orchestra embarked on its first national tour to 17 cities as far north as Chicago. Its Carnegie Hall debut occurred March 11, 1965, as part of the International Festival of Visiting Orchestras. To date, the Symphony has performed 16 times at the world-famous venue; the most recent performance was in May 2012 when the Houston Symphony kicked off the second annual Spring for Music Festival. The orchestra's first overseas trip occurred in June 1990 with an appearance in Japan at the Singapore Festival of Arts. Throughout the 1990s, the Houston Symphony returned to Japan for a residence at the Pacific Music Festival and toured through Europe extensively, with appearances in England, France, Holland, Germany, Switzerland, and Austria. In 2000, the Houston Symphony participated in a five-concert European Festival Tour. In 1994 and 1998, the Houston Symphony toured the U.S. East Coast and Midwest.

In January 2006, the Symphony visited Carnegie Hall in a special performance featuring music by Mozart, Shostakovich, and Texas composer Pierre Jalbert. In January 2010, the Symphony performed again at Carnegie Hall, along with appearances in Florida's Kravis and Broward Centers, with the premiere of The Planets—An HD Odyssey. Later that year, the orchestra journeyed to the United Kingdom to perform The Planets—An HD Odyssey to sold-out crowds in a seven-city tour. In June 2012, the Houston Symphony became the first-ever American orchestra to perform at the Annual Festival of the World's Symphony Orchestras in Moscow, Russia, known as the highlight of the Moscow musical season.

In March 2018, Music Director Andrés Orozco-Estrada led the Houston Symphony on a four-country, eight-city tour through some of Europe's most prestigious concert halls and festivals. World-renowned violinist and three-time Grammy Award-winner Hilary Hahn joined the Houston Symphony for all performances. The high-profile tour, which featured concerts in Vienna, Berlin, Hamburg, and Munich, was Orozco-Estrada's first international tour with the orchestra and the Houston Symphony's first major European tour in more than 20 years. This great achievement was made possible by more than 70 donors who contributed more than $1.76 million for the tour, including 12 who traveled to Europe to support and celebrate the Symphony during the tour.

Composer-in-Residence: The Houston Symphony's commitment to new music and continually expanding the symphonic repertoire sees the world premiere in 2019–2020 of a Houston Symphony commission from Composer-in-Residence Jimmy López Bellido, in the third and final year of his residency. López's Symphony No. 2, Ad Astra (December 2019), takes its inspiration from a subject near and dear to Houston's heart: the space program and humankind's exploration of the stars. This season, López's Dreamers Oratorio, which explores the U.S. immigrant experience, will conclude the Symphony's Classical Series.

Recording: The Houston Symphony has recorded under various labels, including Naxos, Koch International Classics, Telarc, RCA Red Seal, and Virgin Classics labels. Most recently, the Houston Symphony and Andrés recorded the last four symphonies of Dvořák on the Dutch recording label PENTATONE. Other PENTATONE recordings include a Music of the Americas disc (February 2018) featuring Gershwin's An American in Paris, Revueletas' Sensemayá, Piazzolla's Tango, and Bernstein's Symphonic Dances from West Side Story, and Haydn's The Creation (May 2018). The Houston Symphony's performance of Alban Berg's Wozzeck under the direction of then Music Director Hans Graf was released in January 2017 to great acclaim. Recorded in March 1, 2013 on the Naxos label, the two-disc album earned a prestigious ECHO KLASSIK 2017 award in the category of Best Opera Recording (20th/21st Century Opera). The orchestra earned its first Grammy nomination and Grammy Award at the 60th annual ceremony for the same recording in the Best Opera Recording category in 2018.

Broadcasts: Classical concerts are broadcast locally on Houston Public Media News 88.7 and streaming online at houstonpublicmedia.org. Select Houston Symphony concerts and repertoire are also broadcast nationally on American Public Media programs SymphonyCast and Performance Today.

Music: The Houston Symphony's musical offerings include a Classical Series featuring major classical repertoire and soloists led by Music Director Andrés Orozco-Estrada and guest conductors. Each classical concert begins with a free, 30-minute "Prelude" pre-concert conversation that begins 45 minutes before the performance and, on occasion, this "Prelude" is a chamber music performance instead of lecture. The Houston Symphony's season also include a nine-concert POPS Series led by Principal Pops Conductor Steven Reineke featuring popular artists or themes, Symphony Specials or single performances with special guest artists, a four-concert BBVA Family Series is held on select Saturday mornings and led by Associate conductor Robert Franz and guest conductors, and The Robbins Foundation Student Concerts Series, one-hour school day matinees for grades 2–12.

Other Services: The Houston Symphony hosts a variety of other programs for all ages. Free Neighborhood Concerts are an annual series of concerts each June, featuring dynamic musical experiences in a relaxed atmosphere in venues throughout Houston (ex. Lilly Grove Missionary Baptist Church and North Shore Senior High School). The ENGIE Community Connections Program is designed to broaden our musical contact with our diverse Houston population. It provides opportunities for musicians to perform or provide instructional coaching in close, personal settings. Each session is approximately one hour in length and includes time for discussion. The Houston Symphony offers two major competitions each year for young musicians. The Ima Hogg Competition is a competition for young musicians, ages 16–26, who play standard orchestral instruments and piano. Launched in July 2015, the Community-Embedded Musicians Program, is designed to dramatically expand and enhance the impact of the orchestra's growing education and community engagement activities. The primary role of these four Community-Embedded Musicians is to integrate themselves in Houston schools, community centers, hospitals, and churches as a teaching artist and performer, while also performing on stage with members of the Houston Symphony. The Community-Embedded Musicians offer nearly 800 community-based performances each year, both individually and as small ensembles.
